June , 2005

Sir:

Applicant is responding to the Action by Examiner Tuyen Tra of May 30,
2005, mailed June 9, 2005.

I. General Remarks

The instant application is a manufacturing invention. The earlier cited Rabinowitz and Davidson patent (U.S. Pat. 6,738,176) [not cited in this action, but also referred in this action] and the Davidson and Rabinowitz patent (U.S. Pat. 6,698,693) are not manufacturing inventions and do not discuss any manufacturing process. Neither they nor any of the issued Rabinowitz and Davidson, and Davidson and Rabinowitz patents deal with any making, manufacturing, or fabricating processes, steps, or stages.

There are further and crucially important distinctions between the instant invention and all of these prior inventions, the most important of which is:

1. In the instant invention the mirrored balls are individually encapsulated, with each ball inside of a spherical lubricated cavity formed within a single sheet. The written specification and the drawings all teach and show this. The claims are all
